

Runaway Romance Recalled in Spy Case

Huw K. Williams, the Senate messenger who made headlines in 1957 when he ran away with the daughter of the confessed Swedish spy, Col. Stig Wennerstrom, is reported to be living in West Virginia.

The youth, now 24, is in "private business" and living very happily with his wife, who is not Christine Wennerstrom, Williams' mother said yesterday.

After his run-away romance, Williams was convicted of being an accessory to a robbery and sentenced to six years in the Federal Correction Institution at Ashland, Ky.

Williams was paroled Dec. 18, 1959, after serving 19 months of his sentence. In October, 1961 a certificate was granted to set aside his conviction under the provisions of the Federal Youth Corrections Act.

His mother, Nan Williams of 115 D st. se., said that Huw never went to Sweden to pursue Christine after her parents took her home to break up the romance.
